The contract for the new wharf market buildings has not been placed, and there is some talk on the part of the lessees of the old tumble-down frame shacks now used as a fish market, to start a move to hurry the construction of the new buildings, which are sadly needed. The market wharves for the next two months will be dull places. The oyster and fish season is over, and until the watermelon vessels begin to arrive early in August, lumber and a few canned goods will be the only cargoes to be unloaded at the District wharves.
